Value chain financing

Part 1

Farming is a diverse industry globally

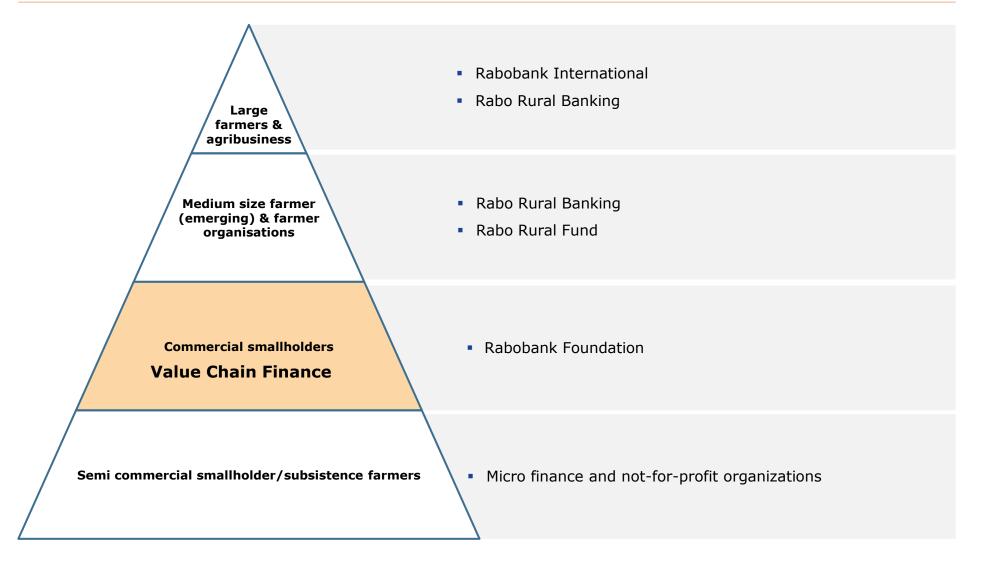

- Land title/collateral
- Access to finance
- Financial literate
- Good financial documentation
- · Sometimes land title
- Some collateral
- Moderate financial literacy
- Developing financial documentation
- Some access to formal finance
- No land title/collateral
- Land use rights
- No financial literacy
- No financial documentation
- No access to formal finance

Rabobank Entities according to farmer type

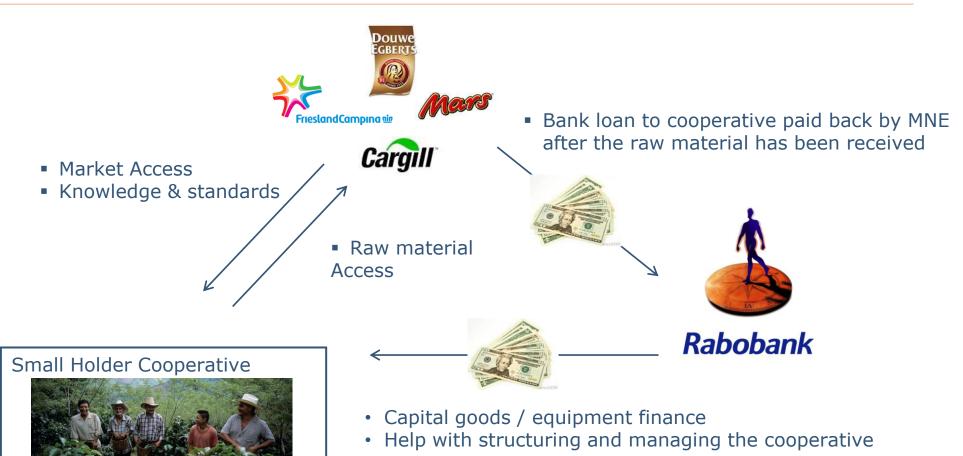

Value Chain Financing (VCF)

- VCF finance models based on transaction streams and relationships in the supply chain
- VCF assesses the payment capacity of the farmer/coop by looking at his delivery record rather than his credit record
- Collateral is still important but could be lower if performance record is strong, contracts exist
- Tri-partite agreement is basis for VCF structure
- VCF creates a win-win for the farmer, the processor and the bank

Input financing with Value Chain Financing (VCF) Models

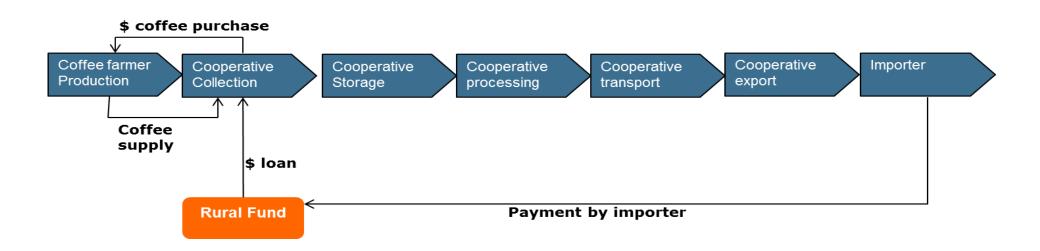

An example of pre-export finance by using the linkages in the VC

Another form of value chain financing whereby:

- export contracts can be pledged to banks whereby the foreign buyer pays directly in the bank's account
- Social lenders (e.g. Rabobank Rural Fund) are specialized in PXF (working capital for purchasing from the small holders, processing, trading / exporting, based on signed sales contracts)

Lessons learned Value Chain Financing

Value chain finance concepts can be a good option to increase bankability of smallholders and chain development:

- It is also a buzz word used by everyone which only few banks really understand;
- VCF mainly works for working capital and the more integrated the sectors
- Reliable off-takers acceptable for banks are needed, even than, it can go wrong mainly due to operational risks;
- Banks may lack the knowledge to develop & monitor financial schemes and to evaluate the risks;
- Decision making in the banks can often take a long time not taking into account the seasonality of the produce (timely action is required in agri finance);
- Only few banks accept forward linkages as collateral substitute, most take fixed collateral as well
- Models where farmers own a minority part of the processor gives commitment and extra income and can be successful

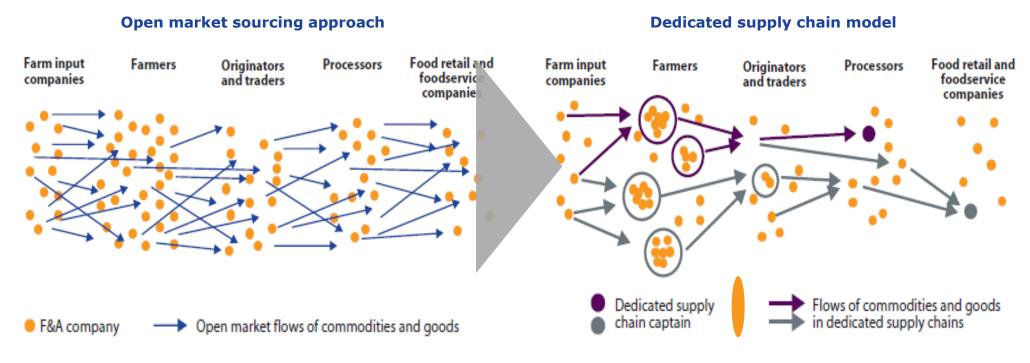

Dedicated value chains

Part 2

Dedicated supply chains: one model for strengthening supply chains

Key premise:

- Focus on formalised cooperation, supply agreements and less on spot market supply
- Chain captain (e.g. a retailer or major processor) takes the lead
- Farmers are grouped (e.g. in cooperatives) and commit to the long term supply relationship and cooperation

Source: Rabobank, 2013

The key to strengthening supply chains is to focus on adding value rather than chasing price

Reduce risk

- Reduce exposure to market price volatility through multi-year, more stable pricing arrangements
- Improve resilience to market shocks

Improve productivity

- Optimise production through more certainty on flows
- Improve process innovation through better insights into chain needs

Improve access to capital

- Improve investment opportunities through more stable cash flow and longer-term supply agreements
- Access new models that provide leverage from partners

Access new markets

• Improve product innovation – work with chain partners to secure supply to meet downstream opportunities

Enhance reputation and brand

• Work with chain partners to deliver on other required product attributes, such as safety and sustainability
